Towns Captured North Of Aachen

Break-out Bid Fails

TIGHTENING THEIR GRIP ON THE ENCIRCLED CITY OF AACHEN, THE U.S. 1st ARMY YESTERDAY CAPTURED RICHTERICH AND KOHLSCHEID, TWO SMALL TOWNS A MILE TO THE NORTH.

The German garrison again tried to break out of Aachen yesterday, but the attack was repulsed.

The furious German counter-attack launched on Monday in the Verlautenheide direction, to relieve the Aachen garrison, died out, and the position there is unchanged.

South-east of Aachen, resistance continues stiff in the Hurtgen area, and patrols are finding the going difficult.

East of the city the Americans' newly-joined line is being swiftly built up in strength. German losses have been very heavy in futile thrusts against Crucifix Hill. An American staff officer estimated that the Germans had lost 25 per cent. of the troops thrown against the 1st Army. But it has become apparent to correspondents that the state of the German supply lines is better than had earlier been supposed—much better, in fact.

The Allied Air Forces are striking to isolate the German Ruhr armies. The whole communications system feeding arms, supplies and reinforcements to the Wehrmacht formations opposing General Dempsey's southern and General Hodges's northern groups have been under sustained fire.

The German military correspondent, Sertorius, claimed last night that the route to Aachen was still open.

Three-mile Push By British

British armour on the right flank of the Overloon thrust has pushed south nearly three miles, to cut the Deurne-Venraij road in the vicinity of Mersela.

Armoured units of the American 1st Army are fighting on the right flank of the British 2nd Army, under General Dempsey's command.

Heavy fighting continues in the neck of the South Beveland causeway, where the Germans have put in more counter attacks, supported by tanks.

Street fighting is going on in the road centre of Venraij, as British infantrymen work their way through the town house by house, against Germans who have strong-points in attics and cellars in almost every street.

About half the town is in British hands, and the Germans are gradually being forced back from the rest. The Germans have artillery at street corners in some sections of this once-beautiful town, and snipers are even in the trees lining the streets.

The German forces trapped in the Scheldt "pocket" have now fallen back to their last defence line.

The new line runs from the Hoofdplatt sector through Aardenburg and up to the west coast town of Knocke. Heavy casualties have forced the German withdrawal to this shortened perimeter, but they are still hitting back stubbornly at the forces closing in on them.

The "Irish Times" Clock being taken away for repairs.

South Kerry Vacancy

The Fianna Fail convention for the selection of a candidate to contest the South Kerry by-election will be held in Killarney on Saturday next. Mr. Sean Moylan, Minister for Lands, will preside.

FOOD CRISIS IN BELGIUM

POPULAR feeling about the severity of the Belgian food situation and the general, acute shortage of basic commodities, such as meat, coffee and butter, has sharply increased in Brussels. According to usually well-informed quarters M. Pierlot's Government will soon be facing a major crisis.

Complaints throughout the city that the Government has failed to provide food, even though all commodities, except coffee, exist in considerable quantities in the country, have become more bitter since the recent military order which prohibited all Allied personnel from buying any kind of rationed food.

Government critics state that they cannot understand why the food situation is so badly organised, particularly since all restaurants have been closed as part of the war against the black market.

The Government view is that the food situation cannot be regarded as an isolated domestic problem. A Government spokesman emphasised yesterday that all national problems are inter-related, and are further complicated by the war.—(Reuter.)

Neutrals Will Have No "Right" To Attend Peace Conference

MR. HEWLETT (C., Manchester Exchange) asked, in the British House of Commons yesterday, whether countries which had adopted a neutral attitude in the war would be represented at the Peace Conference.

Mr. Attlee, the Deputy Prime Minister, replied: "The only countries which can be represented as a right are those which have participated in the war as belligerents."

Soviet Autumn Offensive In Full Swing

TEN Soviet Army groups, moving in Marshal Stalin's autumn offensive, are hitting at key points along the front, which stretches from Southern Yugo-Slavia to the Arctic, according to Berlin and Moscow reports released yesterday and quoted by Reuter.

On the East Prussia-Baltic front, says Reuter, General Chernyakovsky's army has gone over to the offensive S.W. of Kaunas on a 25-mile front north and south of the main railway to Insterburg, communications hub 40 miles into German territory.

The Berlin reports said that Soviet troops have reached the East Prussia border, and made several breaches near Neustadt. "These were sealed off," it was stated.

More northerly Soviet armies on the Baltic, states Reuter's correspondent, are attacking heavily S.E. of Libau and at Doblen, while south of East Prussia General Zakharov's forces have kept up their heavy attacks on the Narev sector, near Rozan. On the Arctic front General Meretskov's army is striking west of Petsamo and, according to the German High Command report, is "in hot pursuit" of the Germans, who have already withdrawn to the Norwegian border.

The nine days' old tank battle of East Hungary now stretches for at least 80 miles across the great plain east of the Danube. The battlefield is many miles broad. Its limits are from south-west of Debreczen to a point about midway between Budapest and the Yugo-Slav frontier.

The German News Agency correspondent, commenting on this tank battle, said:—"That classical clash of armour, it is moving to the south. There is no other event like it in the Balkans. Fighting on all the other sectors dwindles if compared with this mighty collision."

Moscow Radio said that the Germans have concentrated their biggest tank force yet, so far, in this battle.

Bitter fighting is raging also at key points along the main railway running along the river valleys to the south as Marshal von Weich strives to extricate 22 German divisions from their position south of the Danube.

In Belgrade street fighting continues.

The Soviet communiqué did not mention the new assault S.W. of Kaunas, but claimed advances west and S.W. of Riga and the capture of Zalau and eight railway stations in Northern Transylvania.

The Rumanian High Command stated yesterday that in Northern Transylvania Rumanian troops, in co-operation with the Red Army, have reached the area of Zalau (about 49 miles N.W. of Cluj).

David Brown, Reuter's Special Correspondent at Allied Headquarters in Italy, says that R.A.F. heavy and medium bombers based on Italy made an all-out attack on Monday night on the rail yards at Zagreb, capital of Croatia—vital link on the Germans' rail routes from the Balkans—and that this assault followed heavy daylight raids by Fortresses and Liberators on oil refineries, plane factories and railyards in South Germany, Austria and Czechoslovakia.

"Total War" Call To Hungarians

BUDAPEST Radio last night broadcast an order by the City Commander instructing "all members of the armed forces to proceed at once to their barracks or to their homes."

The new Hungarian Government, in its first appeal to the nation, according to the German News Agency, quoted by Reuter, stated:—

"The new Hungarian Government calls the entire nation to its duty and work at the front without reservation and sparing no sacrifice. The enemy has put his cards on the table. We know to-day that to give up the fight and sue for an armistice would have terrible consequences, so the Hungarian Government considers its first task is to carry out a total mobilisation of the nation for the struggle at the side of its allies.

"From now on the whole country will work for its army and will produce everything that is necessary to continue the fight. The German Reich has given us guarantees for the intensification of the common struggle, and we are fighting this fateful struggle with unshakable determination at Germany's side in the sure and guaranteed conviction that the German soldier is fighting with us for an independent Hungary.

"We vow by our lives that their will be no more stabbing in the back by elements acting on behalf of foreign interests. The new Government will see to it that the old system is liquidated, and that National and Socialist justice prevails"

A German News Agency statement said that Colonel-General Vitez Bela Miklos, former Hungarian Commander-in-Chief, and Colonel Keri, his Chief of Staff, have deserted and gone over to the Russians.

The German News Agency, quoted by Reuter, announced late last night: "By an enactment of Premier Szalasy, the members of the Arrow Cross Party will be attached to the departments of State which maintain order on the home front."

Presidency of Irish Red Cross

A new bill to be introduced in the Dail to-day provides that the President of Ireland shall be the President of the Irish Red Cross Society. The President of Ireland, Dr. Douglas Hyde, is the President of the Society at present, a position to which he was appointed by the Government under a Statutory Order made in 1939. That Order fixed the term of the appointment at five years. The new bill, when passed, will, presumably, make the holder of the office of President ipso facto President of the Society. The President of the High Court, Mr. Justice Conor Maguire, is Chairman of the Central Council of the Irish Red Cross Society.

President of High Court Bereaved

The President of the High Court, Mr. Justice Conor Maguire, has been bereaved by the death of his mother, Mrs. Florence Maguire, which took place yesterday at her residence in Claremorris, Co. Mayo. Mrs. Maguire was widow of Dr. C. Maguire, Claremorris.

JAPANESE FLEET AVOIDED ACTION

—ADMIRAL NIMITZ

ADMIRAL NIMITZ, Allied Commander-in-Chief, Pacific, yesterday contradicted the Japanese claims to have "annihilated" one of the American fleets off Formosa during the week-end.

The American Admiral's communiqué said that the Japanese "avoided action, and withdrew towards their bases."

There was no naval engagement, but Japanese shore-based aircraft succeeded in scoring two hits on two medium ships, which were retired from the area, with small casualties.

Yet another raid by Super-Fortresses on military targets at Formosa is reported by General Arnold, Commander-in-Chief of the United States A.A.F. The Super-Fortresses, based on Western China, which attacked the island again yesterday, bombed the Einansho air-base installations at Tainan, on the south-western coast.

Simultaneously, a medium force carried out visual bombing on other targets on Formosa.

Co-operating with Admiral Nimitz's operations, the American 14th Air Force on Monday sank a Japanese cruiser, and probably sank a destroyer in the South China Sea, General Stillwell's H.Q. announces. The communiqué added that the bombers also sank over 32,000 tons of Japanese sea-going shipping, and probably sank over 16,000 tons.

At least two tankers, three freighters and one large vessel were sunk near Kowloon Docks, which were heavily damaged by fires and explosions after close bombing.

The German News Agency said last night that Admiral Doenitz, the German Navy C.-in-C., had telegraphed congratulations to Admiral Yonai, Japanese Naval Minister, on the Japanese "naval victory" off Formosa.—(Reuter.)

THE modern partition of Poland is illustrated in the map above. The Germans began their advance from the west on September 1st, 1939; the Russians advanced from the east on September 17th. A joint Russo-German communiqué on September 18th said that the task of the troops of the two powers was to re-establish peace and "to assist the population of Poland in reconstructing the conditions of their State existence."

The annexation of Western Poland by Germany was decreed in an Order published on October 19th. Under an Order published on October 25th the German-occupied territory, apart from that annexed, was placed under a Governor-General directly responsible to Herr Hitler. The annexation by Russia of the Western Ukraine and Western White Russia was announced on November 1st and 2nd, 1939. Subsequently small concessions were made to Lithuania (annexed by Russia in June, 1940) and to Slovakia.

Russia has offered to fix the Curzon Line (proposed by Lord Curzon during the boundary dispute of 1919) as the future border between the U.S.S.R. and Poland.

Old I.R.A. Men's Libel Suit Fails

Five Old I.R.A. men, who claimed that they suffered damages as a result of a leading article headed "The Pensioners' Ramp," which was published in the Connacht Tribune of November 6th, 1943, were unsuccessful at Galway Circuit Court, before Judge Fionan Lynch, in actions for damages for libel against the Connacht Tribune Printing and Publishing Company, Galway.

The plaintiffs were Peter Dooley, Ballyrickard, Headford; William Higgins, Cashla, Athenry; Michael Hannify, Tallyho, Athenry; Michael Gannon, Gurranes, Tuam, and Martin Rogan, Ballygaddy road, Tuam.

The article complained of stated: "It is the duty of the State to see that none of the soldiers in the fight for freedom shall suffer in this way. At least, those gallant men of another day should be assured of freedom from want and worry, so far as possible, but it is a different matter when it comes to paying substantial sums to people who are comfortably off, and if they had a spark of decency would never dream of asking the State to supplement their incomes."

The plaintiffs, who were refused military service pensions by the Referee appointed under the Military Service Pension Act, 1943, brought an action in the High Court and were granted conditional orders of certiorari directing the Minister for Defence to bring before the Court for the purpose of being quashed, unless he could show cause, the report of the Referee. The report of the proceedings appeared in the same issue of the Connacht Tribune as the leading article.

The defence was that the leading article referred to a speech in the Dail.

His Lordship, dismissing the action, said it would take a long stretch of imagination to associate the words complained of with the plaintiffs.

Fierce Fighting Near Bologna

An all-out defence of approaches to Bologna was reported from the Fifth Army front yesterday. Pressed back on their positions immediately before the city, the Germans are no longer fighting stubborn delaying actions, but are throwing in everything they have.

Fifth Army units, according to Reuter's correspondent at Allied Italian H.Q., are between nine and nine and a half miles from Bologna, and have been shelling the suburbs for several days. On Monday heavy counter-fire was opened from great concentrations of artillery.

£1,356 Hidden in Wooden Leg

CHRISTOPHER HEHIR (24), of Limerick, and Desmond Logan (27), of Dundalk, were charged at Dublin District Court yesterday with housebreaking, and stealing £2,620 from the safe of a ribbon manufacturing company in Dublin.

A detective said that when Hehir was searched £1,356 in notes was found in his wooden leg.

In a statement, which was put in evidence, Hehir described how he and Logan climbed over roof-tops, entered 24 Suffolk street, and broke open a safe, in which they found sealed envelopes containing Irish and English currency notes for £100, £50, £20, £10, £5, £1 and for 10s. They filled their pockets, but had to leave a large number of notes behind, because their pockets were so full. They bought complete changes of clothing, and went by bus to Limerick, where they counted their money. Hehir said that he counted up to £900, but then gave up, as he was tired. Logan counted £1,050 in his portion of the money.

Detective-Officer Farrelly said that the men were arrested in Cork, where they had bought a wireless set for £5, and paid £2 for seats at the Opera House. Logan, in a statement, agreed with what Hehir had said. The accused men were remanded until to-day.

The firms alleged to have been broken into included Ribbons, Ltd., where £2,620 (the property of Emil Hirsch) was said to have been stolen; Les Modes Modernes, and John Montgomery and Son.

Citizens Aid "Little Mother"

Contributions are pouring in from sympathetic citizens to aid Dublin's now famous "Little Mother," who first came into prominence a week ago.

This 16½-year-old girl, who supported a younger sister and two brothers, earned 8s. 2d. per week, and sums of relief brought her total income to 36s. 7d. per week.

The case was brought to the notice of the authorities, and it was sought to have the children sent to an industrial school; but District Justice McCarthy allocated 10s. per week from the Court Poor Box until Christmas to see how they would get on.

The morning after the report of the case first appeared in the newspapers sums of money were sent in from sympathetic citizens. Yesterday District Justice McCarthy stated in the Children's Court that a further £21 19s. had been subscribed for the support of the children.

New Social Services Scheme for Eire

SICKNESS benefits equivalent to 50 per cent. of the weekly earnings and retirement pensions are visualised in a revolutionary scheme of health benefits and social services which has been presented to the Minister for Local Government and Public Health by the National Health Insurance Society.

Elaborate new hospital services and the appointment of a Minister for Social Services are suggested.

It is estimated that 90 per cent. of the population would benefit by the scheme.

Suggestions for the financing of the scheme include the allocation of "all profits of the Sweepstake," while members' contributions would be increased.

It is estimated that 2,600,000 people would come under the scheme. The proposed contributions and benefits are on a sliding scale. The more a member received the more he would pay in contributions, and the more he would receive in benefits.

The new plan, which was suggested by the Most Rev. Dr. Dignan, Bishop of Clonfert, Chairman of the Committee of Management of the National Health Society, provides for the fullest range of medical care for members and dependents, in addition to sickness and disability pensions, marriage, mortality benefits, and retirement pensions.

MARRIAGE GRANTS

It proposes that all the country's social services and health schemes come under the control of the National Health Society, and provides for the following cash benefits:—

Sickness.—Fifty per cent. of the weekly wage or salary for 52 weeks, plus 10s. for wife.

Disability.—33⅓ per cent. of the weekly wage or salary for 52 weeks, plus 10s. for wife, followed by 25 per cent. of the weekly wage or salary as long as incapacity lasts, plus 10s. for wife.

Marriage.—A sum varying from £5 to £20, according to wage. A loan of from £10 to £50 may also be paid to men, free of interest, and repayable with a reduction in capital debt, for each child born.

Maternity.—Sickness benefits for eight weeks preceding and six weeks following confinement. To non-insured wives of insured men, a lump sum equal to four weeks' sickness benefits, based on husband's wages.

Retirement Pension.—Fifty per cent. of retiring weekly wage or salary, plus 10s. for wife.

Mortality.—£10 to £20, according to wages.

HEALTH CAMPAIGN

A hospital system on the following lines, to benefit members and their dependents, is proposed: Regional hospitals in each county; auxiliary hospitals in towns of population of 5,000 or over; district hospitals in other selected towns and larger villages; specialised hospitals for treatment of rheumatism, fevers, tuberculosis, mental diseases, etc., to be provided where considered necessary; convalescent homes, children's hospitals and homes for the aged, distributed according to needs; health centres, full facilities for consultative service and specialised treatment of all kinds, attached to each of the regional, auxiliary and district hospitals; travelling motor clinics for remote districts, and clinics in specialised hospitals and at all health centres.

It is proposed that the Society have charge of tuberculosis, rheumatism and other incapacitating diseases, with which separate and independent bodies are now entrusted.

The total abolition of poor law services, now called public assistance, is implied. Dispensaries would disappear, and be replaced by clinics and welfare centres.

The services of district medical officers of health and of most other doctors, dentists, ophthalmic surgeons and nurses would be transferred to the Society, and the "agreed" use of all hospitals—public, voluntary and private—and the erection of additional hospitals, sanatoria, clinics, etc., is implied.

The scheme proposes an immediate nation-wide health campaign.

Public lectures, advertisements, posters, etc., would be used to teach cleanliness, personal hygiene, the necessity for fresh air and good fresh water. A demand would be created for modern sanitation, good water supply, electric light, recreation grounds, playing fields, swimming pools, halls, etc., in every village and town. The Society would recommend, and assist in procuring, good housing conditions.

Pharmaceutical services are to be provided for, and exorbitant charges for medicines are to be prevented.

Dr. Dignan, in his introduction to the scheme, states that, "as Ireland is a Christian and Catholic country, our social services ought to be Christian." The health services taken from Great Britain, he says, were not noted for their Christian spirit, as they were materialistic and merely palliative.

Dr. Dignan says he cannot at the moment give any indication of the total cost of the contributions to be borne by the contributing parties. The investigation could only be made by the State. The National Health Insurance Society said that it would cost very little, and would mean mainly a mere redistribution of funds.

Various means of financing the Society are suggested. They include a suggestion that if a large capital subvention was required it might be provided in the same manner as funds were found for approved societies when they were established in 1911. At that time the Government gave the societies paper credit, on a "reserve value" basis; the credit was given on the understanding that year by year they should reserve to a capital fund a certain amount in proportion to the credit received.

It is also suggested that sums provided by the State and local authorities for similar services be now transferred to the Society. Trade unions, societies and organisations providing for their members some of the benefits indicated in the plan would be asked to transfer to the Society capital sums accruing for the purpose.

It is suggested that "all the profits of the Sweepstake" should be put at the Society's disposal.

The proposed committee is described by Dr. Dignan as the nearest approach to vocational organisation in the country.

The object of the new and improved society will be three-fold—to provide compensation to members, to prevent illness and to restore members to health.

Controlled by a governing body, which will be representative of "all interested in ensuring health to the community—the Government, local authorities, employers, employees and medical profession"—the new Society seeks to incorporate all wage earners, as well as voluntary contributors drawn from farmers, shopkeepers, professions, business people, etc.

The Society would have three groups to cover: National Health Insurance (including Workmen's Compensation), Unemployment Insurance, Widows' and Orphans', Old Age and Blind Pensions and Children's Allowances.

LEGISLATION

An Irish Times reporter learned last night that the Government is likely to introduce legislation partly on the lines of the suggestions. Two weeks ago, dealing with the question of the lack of allowances to the dependents of bread-winners stricken with tuberculosis, the Irish Times reported that the Government was likely to introduce legislation covering the matter.

The National Health Society claims that the new plan was under consideration ten years before the Beveridge scheme was thought of. An official told an Irish Times reporter last night that it is superior in so far as it provides for sliding rates of contributions and benefits in accordance with salary, whereas the rates in the new British scheme are fixed.

The existing National Health Insurance Society is confined to manual workers between 16 and 70 years; non-manual workers whose salaries do not exceed £250 per year, and about 1,300 voluntary subscribers. Sickness, disablement, marriage and maternity benefits are given. For sickness the amounts are 15s. per week for men and 12s. for women for 26 weeks at most. The disablement benefit is 7s. 6d. per week. On marriage a woman receives surrender value of 30s. to 60s. The maternity benefit is £2 if either father or mother is an insured member, or £4 if both are insured.

Proposed Air Convention

A NEW convention on international air transport was proposed by the British Government in a White Paper issued yesterday. The convention would be administered by an international air authority which would, in due course, be placed in proper relationship to a world security organisation. It would consist of representatives of the ratifying States, with voting powers to be determined on an equitable basis.

The White Paper outlines six objectives of international collaboration. These are:—

To meet the needs of the peoples of the world for plentiful, efficient and cheap air services.

To maintain broad equilibrium between the world's air transport capacity and the traffic offering; to ensure equitable participation by the various countries engaged in international air transport; to eliminate wasteful competitive practices and, in particular, to control subsidies; to standardise practice on technical matters important to the safety of flying; and, in general, to contribute to world security.

Censorship Proposal Criticised

At the annual meeting of the Council of the Catholic Truth Society of Ireland, in the Gresham Hotel, Dublin, the Very Rev. P. O'Farrell, P.P., V.F., Oldcastle, moving the adoption of the report, referred to the proposal to replace the Censorship Board by a paid official.

"It is to be hoped," he said, "that the Board will not be so replaced, and that we have heard the last of this suggestion. If the Board is to be reformed, it is to be hoped this reform will take the right direction. We want no Government Bureau or Political Commissar. If changes are to be made, we want to see the Board put on a basis of independence, on which it itself can devise machinery for the more expeditious handling of complaints."

Referring to the dangers of Communism, he said its strength could be fairly measured in the wreck it made of the once flourishing Irish Labour Party. The new Vanguard movement appeared to be an attempt at a Catholic-Communist synthesis, and it seemed necessary to make it clear that in this Catholic country there was no possibility of any kind of co-operation between Catholics and Communists.

Mr. D. McMenamin, T.D., stated that there need be no fear of what the Oireachtas would do if any proposal to replace the Censorship Board by a salaried official was brought before it.

The report was adopted.

Dail Questions To-day

Questions for Ministers in the Dail to-day include the following:—

Mr. M. J. Keyes (Lab., Limerick) will ask the Taoiseach if it is the Govenment's intention to make April 24th (date of 1916 rising) a national holiday?

Captain P. Giles (F.G., Meath-Westmeath) will ask the Minister for Justice whether his attention had been called to the recent launching in Dublin of an organisation called the Vanguard, having for its objects the destruction of private property and the creation of a spirit of revolt among the workers and working farmers, and, if so, whether, in view of its declared objects, he would take steps to suppress the organisation?

Captain Giles will also ask the same Minister what is the position of Communism in Eire to-day; whether it is an active organisation, and under what name it carries on its activities; also how many known "cells" there are, and where they are located?

Th chief business will be the report stage of the Transport Bill.

Portsmouth Raid Casualties.—In 67 raids on Portsmouth, 930 people were killed, 1,216 treated in hospital, and 1,621 slightly injured, it was announced yesterday.

Talks Resumed In Moscow

MR. ANTHONY EDEN and Sir Archibald Clark Kerr, the British Ambassador, had a talk of over three-quarters of an hour yesterday at the British Embassy with M. Mikoljczyk, the Polish Prime Minister, and M. Romer, Polish Foreign Minister, states Reuter. These talks followed a series of conferences the day before between the Polish and British representatives, which ended in a talk of about an hour and a half with Mr. Churchill and Mr. Eden.

Mr. Churchill and Marshal Stalin had a two-hour talk at the Kremlin on Monday evening, and Mr. Eden saw M. Molotov, the Soviet Foreign Commissar, for about the same length of time.

Mr. Churchill and Marshal Stalin conferred again last night.

M. Molotov yesterday gave a small informal luncheon party, and the guests included Mr. Eden, Sir Archibald Clark Kerr, Mr. John Balfour, the British Minister; M. Vyshinsky, Soviet Vice-Premier; M. Maisky, former Soviet Ambassador in London, and M. Gusev, the present Soviet Ambassador to Britain.

Grain Prices Demand

At Westmeath Agricultural Committee meeting on Monday Mr. W. J. Finnerty proposed that the committee recommend to the Department that the price of wheat be increased to £3 per barrel, barley to £2, and oats to 25/-.

Mr. G. L'Estrange, seconding, said that Dr. Ryan last year gave them a guarantee that there would be a market for oats, but there was none. If any alien came into the country and set up a factory, he would be protected by the Government.

Mr. Finnerty's resolution was passed by ten votes to two for Mr. O. Comiskey's amendment that prices be left as they are.

Coursing As Strong As Ever

By MASTER McGRATH

A REMARKABLE feature connected with Irish sport during the last five years has been the manner in which the Irish Coursing Club, which rules over coursing in all parts of the country, has kept the sport of the leash going. Conditions were abnormal—at times most depressing—but a few only of the clubs found them insuperable, and, as for the governing body itself, except on one occasion it succeeded in making complete successes of its meetings, the Irish Cup and the National meeting, the exception being the Irish Cup of the season before last, which was abandoned owing to transport difficulties.

At the jubilee dinner of the I.C.C. a couple of months ago, the Secretary, Mr. Thomas Morris, informed us that last season was the most successful of the Club's 25. It will not be surprising if, at the close of this one, he should be in a position to say the same of it.

The fixture list certainly is most encouraging. All the old-time meetings are included, with a few new ones added. Several of the open country clubs, owing to the emergency, had to "put up the shutters" for the time being, and, perhaps, a few of the enclosed ones may have to restrict their activities, but generally the outlook is very cheerful, indeed.

With the greyhound population having increased by leaps and bounds in the last few years, there should be no scarcity of entries, particularly for the cups, the first of which, the Connaught Cup at Loughrea, is listed for next Tuesday and Wednesday.

The big attraction this season will be the Derby, Oaks and International Cup at the national meeting at Powerstown Park in February. The Oaks has been extended to 64 bitches, thereby putting it on a par with the Derby, and, with the value of the three stakes increased considerably, previous records likely will go by the board. The Irish Cup at Clounanna also has been made more attractive by the Standing Committee. Here, also, the stake will be a more valuable one, and it is on the cards that more than one of the minor cup meetings will be made more alluring for owners.

POACHING OF HARES

If there is a doubt regarding the complete success of the season, it hinges on the supply of game. Reports are a bit conflicting; for, while they state that in some districts the hares are more plentiful than ever, others are not so cheerful, the poacher having been busy in these areas, notably on one open country club's preserves not far from the city.

The Hon. Secretary of the Connaught Cup meeting, Mr. F. O'Brien, informs me that everything is in readiness for next Tuesday and Wednesday, and that 140 hares driven on to the Masonbrook meadows from the club's preserves are in fine trim. The cup has filled, so to speak; and here as elsewhere, a greater interest than usual is sure to be taken in the Trial Stakes, as the result of the added money for the major events at Powerstown Park. Then there are the local stakes, so that the card should be, if anything, more attractive than formerly.

There is a grand old coursing tradition in the Loughrea country, built up around Dunsandle, and it is gratifying to know that it has been maintained by the younger men who now manage the cup meeting.

Messrs. P. Duffy and F. O'Brien are the hon. secretaries. The entries close on next Saturday at 6 o'clock, and the draw will be held in the Railway Hotel on the same evening, at 7 o'clock.

Overboard is Worth Her Weight

By OUR IRISH RACING CORRESPONDENT

FOR quite a number of years it has been an annual source of wonder to me as to why we have not got an equivalent to the English Free Handicap. To students of form there is nothing of more absorbing interest than a good handicap, for it provides an almost limitless subject for discussion.

A year ago the Phœnix Park executive instituted the Phœnix Nursery of £1,000. It drew an entry of 44, and might be rated as the "unofficial Irish T.-Y.-O. Free Handicap." The corresponding race this year, to be decided on Saturday week, attracted an entry of 37, of which ten paid forfeit at the first acceptance.

The non-acceptors included Mr. Joseph McGrath's Panastrid, and I hear from our Curragh Correspondent that this very taking filly has been retired for the season, as has also the same owner's Mafosta. Mr. McGrath won a year ago with Greek Star, and he can be represented in this year's race by Bazooka and Damians. Bazooka is winner of three races, including the Patriotics, but Damians, who cost 2,800 guineas as a yearling, is still a maiden.

The post of honour at the top of the handicap is occupied by Sir Harold Gray's Overboard and Mr. John J. Blake's Stalino, of which pair the latter has still to run. Since running second to Seraglio on her initial appearance, Overboard has won all her other four races in such style as to suggest that she will take an amount of beating here, even under 9-7.

In the opinion of her trainer, Jimmy Canty, who has had more than the average share of experience of top-notchers, she is an exceptionally good filly, and, having seen her in all her races, I would agree with him wholeheartedly.

Nurse Describes Friendship With Lehman

THE principal witness yesterday at the trial of James Herbert Lehman (38), ex-Canadian soldier, charged at the Central Criminal Court, Dublin, before Mr. Justice Martin Maguire and a jury, with the murder of his wife, Margaret Lehman (29), by poisoning, at 11 Leinster road, Rathmines, on March 19th, last, was Miss Annie McCague, a nurse, and a native of Monaghan.

The further hearing was adjourned until this morning.

Continuing her evidence, Mrs. Winifred O'Callaghan, Leinster road, Rathmines, said that when Lehman returned home from the Rotunda Hospital on the night of March 19th, he cried, and told her that his wife and twin boys had died. He said: "Poor thing! I know she had something on her mind." He said his wife had been married before, and her former husband had recently turned up in Dublin. He added that his wife, when in the country, had had an attack like the fit she had the night before. He did not get a doctor then because she usually told him she would be better in the morning.

On a subsequent occasion he told her he had found a terrible letter which he had burned for the sake of his children. He said he was going to stay with his brother-in-law for a few days. He then had a moustache, but wore spectacles only after the funeral.

Cross-examined by Mr. C. Casey, S.C., who, with Mr. D. Bell (instructed by Mr. M. Noyk) defended, Mrs. O'Callaghan said that on the evening of March 19th after Mrs. Lehman's death Lehman was very distressed.

Mrs. Julia Jackson, a sister of the late Mrs Lehman, in evidence, said that in the year 1940 her sister married Lehman in Aldershot. He was then a private in the Royal Canadian Rifles and held that rank until his discharge. Following his discharge he was manager of a business in Guildford, Surrey. Her sister and Lehman got on all right for about two months, but after that there was a change in both of them. Lehman seemed more distant and apart from her sister, who became rather lonely and discontented.

Mr. F. Sherry, who with Mr. G. D. Murnaghan, S.C. (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor) appeared for the State, read a letter dated March 29th, 1944, which Mrs. Jackson had received in Yorkshire from Lehman. In the course of the letter Lehman acknowledged receipt of a letter from Mrs. Jackson, and went on to say that on Sunday afternoon, when he returned to the house after having been out, he found "Peggy" unconscious, undressed and in bed. He could not get a doctor, and after about two hours got an ambulance, but she died.

SICKENING SMELL

Dr. N. Faulkiner, Master of the Rotunda Hospital, said Lehman told him that his wife had been ailing at Christmas, and took suddenly ill that evening.

Dr. G. C. Dockeray, Rotunda Hospital, said that as a result of his examination, and the report of the State Chemist, he came to the conclusion that the cause of death was prussic acid poisoning.

Mrs. Anne Byrne, 7 Leinster road, Rathmines, said that on March 19th, when she had phoned for a doctor and gone for an ambulance, she went to 11 Leinster road, and while in the hallway noticed a very strong, sickening smell.

James Quirke, fireman, said that when he called at 11 Leinster road on March 19th, Lehman told him he had no medical aid for his wife, although he had tried several doctors.

Miss Kathleen Kilmartin, sister, Rotunda Hospital, said that Mrs. Lehman's baby weighed seven lbs. and was normal.

Mrs. Gertrude Moores, proprietress of 15 Lower Mount street, said that Lehman, while staying there, said that he was not happily married.

Nurse Annie McCague, a native of Monaghan, described her meeting with Lehman in Leopardstown Park Hospital. She said he told her he met an Irish girl in England, married her and discovered she had been married before. He said Stokes was the name of the man she married and that the two children were Stokes's. He said his wife had gone back with Stokes to England.

She then described her meeting with Lehman when she returned from Monaghan, where she had spent a short holiday, and said he entertained her to tea and they then went to a house in Lower Mount street, where they conversed for a time.

Miss McCague said that subsequently Lehman told her he had bought a ring, which had cost a small fortune. She told Lehman she wanted to terminate the friendship, and he said he would look her up in six months' time. He never gave her a ring and she never saw one.

On Sunday, January 9th, when she met Lehman, there was some talk about a business which he intended starting. Later, he offered her the position of supervisor of the business and the use of his car if she left Leopardstown Park. He asked her if she would be interested in a share in the business, and she gave him £25. Lehman then said that, as he had not given her a Christmas present, he would make the share a £50 one. She visited the shop about twice a week after that, and occasionally saw Lehman at the house of a friend of hers.

Lehman told her on one occasion that Stokes and his wife were back in Dublin.

When he suggested that they put the two shares into one, she told him she would need to know both sides of the story before she would do anything like that. He then said that any time she made up her mind he would bring her down to Kildare to see his wife's people, who would explain better than he could.

CYANIDE POTASSIUM

On Sunday, March 19th, she did not see Lehman. When she did meet Lehman he said that Mrs. Stokes had died on her way to the Rotunda. She told him he was finished as far as she was concerned. He said "Good-bye," and she did not see him again until the District Court.

Cross-examined by Mr. D. Bell, Miss McCague said she understood Lehman to be a man of considerable wealth, and that he had a shop in Camden street, in addition to the one in Chelmsford road. She told Lehman on a number of occasions that she had a boy friend in Belfast, and she was still friendly with that boy.

In reply to Mr. Justice Maguire, witness said she was 29 years of age.

Mr. Sean Gilsenan, chemist, Lower Rathmines road, said that about the beginning of March, Lehman asked him about cyanide, which he said he wanted for testing coffee. He gave Lehman 150 grains of cyanide potassium.

On March 20th Lehman told him that his wife had been taken to hospital and died on the birth of twins. He said she was "always taking something and did not want children."

Hurling Test at Croke Park

By PAT'O.

PLOUGHING a lonely furrow west of the Shannon, Galway hurlers depend for their match-play on Leinster and Munster counties. Hurling tradition in Galway is among the oldest. Galway hurlers were in the first All-Ireland final (1887), when they lost to Tipperary by a goal. Though only one title has come their way, they continued in the limelight, and were never stronger than in 1944, when they ran Cork to a point in the All-Ireland semi-final. Their appearance at Croke Park on Sunday next in the Oireachtas challenge against Dublin is a first-rate attraction.

With Thornton and Brennan at midfield, and Flaherty and Ford in attack, Galway are a big force—D. Flynn is one of the best wing-backs in the country. Dublin are wise in experimenting with young players like Harris, Healy, Cantwell, O'Riordan and Cummins, following the senior team's debacle against Cork in the second half. We are certain to have a big company of Irish-Ireland folk at Croke Park.

Dublin will line out as follows:—S. Donegan (goal); James O'Neill, M. Butler, F. Fagan; B. Harris, P. McEntyre, S. Healy; M. Hassett, H. Gray; J. Callanan, E. Wade, M. Ryan, D. Cantwell, G. O'Riordan, F. Cummins.

With players like Egan, Terr. Leahy and Lieut. Walsh in reserve, Dublin should put up a good game.

THE FOOTBALL LEAGUES

Leinster's football leagues, in small groups, should reach its final stages before the Christmas break. Meath, Dublin and Carlow look like reaching the inter-group stage, Offaly and Longford are also doing well. Kildare played well against Wicklow, but further changes are likely after their defeat by Dublin at Droichead Nua.

Next Sunday's All-Ireland Camogie final between Dublin and Clare at Inchicore promises a good game. Dublin (holders) are again favourites.

Mourne Grange (Kilkeel) Sports.—Winners were: J. J. Cockburn, P. J. Montgomery, M. Annett (2), C. Long, A. Donnan, A. I. Pearson (2).

Another "600" Purchase

Tanimon (by Tanist) fetched second-best price of 525 gns., the purchaser being Mr. J. Hannafin, the Wimbledon trainer.

M. Cashin Has a Job on Hand

THE Phœnix Club usually caters for the heavier weights in its annual tournament at the Stadium, and this year's presentation, to be staged on Friday next, will be no exception, for the bill includes three heavy-weight bouts, two cruisers and one middle.

The chief attraction is not one of these contests, however, but the return of last week's County Dublin championship welter-weight final between Cpl. M. Cashin and T. Kavanagh (winner). Kavanagh's success was gained by excellent footwork and long-range punching. If Kavanagh can repeat these tactics successfully, he should win again; but Cashin is such a strong, hard-hitter that a slip by his opponent might make a very great difference to the result.

An unexpected reappearance will be that of Sgt. Dwan, former cruiser champion, who will fight T. Kinsella, another winner in last Saturday's championships.

Following is the programme:—

Feather—T. Traecy (Enniskillen) v. G. Morohan (North City).

Light—A. Biggar (Phœnix) v. W. Gifford (Army and North City); J. Fitzsimons (Phœnix) v. H. Isaacson (Jewish).

Welter—Cpl. M. Cashin (Army and South City) v. T. Kavanagh (C.B.S.).

Middle—M. McKeown (I.T. Co.) v. Pte. W Duggan (Myra).

Cruiser—M. McKeever (Phœnix) v. Pte. Vicker (Portobello); Sgt. Dwan (Clancy) v. T. Kinsella (Corinthians).

Heavy—C. Fallan (Phœnix) v. Pte. O'Brien (Portobello); J. Tierney (Phœnix) v. Sgt. Dillon (Army and Santry); J. Kenny (Phœnix) v. G. Colman (North City).

Sgt. E. Kennedy was elected v.-pres. of the Co. Dublin Board, I.A.B.A., at a meeting of that body last night.

Pat Mulcahy (Dublin), conceding 12lb., was beaten on points over 8 rounds by Jim Berry (South Shields) in a middle-weight contest at the Ulster Hall, Belfast, last night.

London Markets Healthier

ON the London Stock Exchange yesterday, dealers reported a more active session, with the market looking better at the close. Good support was again in evidence for Home Rails to the close, but the Aircraft movement showed signs of wavering in the afternoon. The market in Brazilian Bonds has become short of stock, following continued absorption on behalf of official Brazilian sources. Public buying yesterday helped the rise. Good industrial features included Lever and Unilever, which at 45s. were up 1s. on the report; British Plaster Boards 39s. 1½d., up to 4½d., and Cape Asbestos up 1s. One of yesterday's few speculative features was a mild flutter in Mexican Eagle Oil, up 3d. at 10s. 10½d. on the perennial unofficial report of negotiations for compensation between the company and the Mexican Government.

Triplex Safety Glass 10/- shares have risen to 45/- in the past fortnight in the hope that profits for the year would make a good showing. This was justified, for profits have increased from £120,738 to £143,522, and the dividend is increased by 5 p.c. to 15 p.c. On the basis of the increased dividend, however, the yield is still the small one of £3 8/2 p.c., and the price of the shares yesterday reacted to 44/-. The business of the company has been severely curtailed during the war years, but there is little doubt that once the motor industry is re-established its products will again be in demand.

STEADY PROSPERITY

Regular 7 p.c. dividends have been paid by the Britannia Electric Lamp Works, Ltd., since its incorporation in 1937, and this rate of dividend is repeated for the year to April 30th last. In addition to electric lamps, the company manufactures other electrical appliances, and has succeeded in maintaining its position throughout the war years. The dividends have been paid out of earnings of 14 p.c. and over each year. The company's capital of £175,000 is all in 5/- Ordinary shares, which, at their market price of 8/3, offer a yield of over 5½ p.c.

Another successful company floated in the late thirties is T. M. Birkett and Sons, Ltd., non-ferrodus metal founders and engineers. It started with 10 p.c., and for the past four years paid 15 p.c. This is again to be the rate for the year to July 31st last. This company's capital is all in 4/- Ordinary shares quoted at 6/6, at which they give the attractive yield of over 9 p.c.

USEFUL INVESTMENT

There has been persistent buying recently of the 2/6 shares of G. Beaton and Sons, Ltd., and they were marked yesterday as high as 6/1½, a rise of 1/1½ in the past fortnight. At this price they offer a yield of about 6 p.c. on the basis of the 15 p.c. distribution made for each of the past eight years. The company makes motor body fittings, and has contracts with the principal railway companies and public corporations.

EXTRA BONUS

A bonus of 5 p.c. is this year to be added to the 10 p.c. dividend paid by Smith's Stamping Works (Coventry), Ltd. This will make a total of 15 p.c. for the year, as compared with 10 p.c. paid for each of the seven previous years. The company manufactures stampings and forgings in steel and other metals principally for commercial motor vehicles and aeroplanes. The capital of the company is £250,000, all in £1 units of Ord. stock. These have been dealt in at 40/-.

The Gaumont British Picture Corporation announces a dividend of 6 p.c. for the year to March 31st last, the same as in the two previous years. The British Lion Film Corporation, Ltd., reports net profit, before providing for taxation, of £101,270, against £56,636. Taxation requires £87,673 this year, against £43,000 last year. The same dividends as in the previous year are recommended—10 p.c. on the 7½ p.c. Participating Pref. shares and 50 p.c. on the Ord. shares.

Lobitos Oilfields, Ltd., is again paying a dividend of 12½ p.c., the rate to which it was raised last year from the 10 p.c. paid for the previous three years. The capital of the company, which is a Peruvian concern, is £1,000,000, all in £1 Ord. stock units. These are quoted at 54/6.

G.N.R. Ord. Active and Strong

THERE was a slight falling-off in business on the Dublin Stock Exchange yesterday, and markets presented a quieter appearance. Scattered liquidation produced an easier tendency in some directions.

Chief interest again centred in Great Northern Railway Ordinary stock, in which there was a big turnover, and strong support put it 17s. 6d. higher to 29¼. The Preference hardened to 44¾. Great Southern junior issues were quietly offered. The Ordinary drooped to 55½, and the Pref. to 55¾. The Deb. firmed up to 95¾.

Home Government Funds were well maintained, apart from Conversion Loan and National Security Loan, which marked fractional losses. 3½ p.c. War Loan held 105, but among Banks, Munster and Leinsters slipped back to 134/6.

There was a fairly good business passing in Guinness units, but some selling caused a slight easing to 137/3. Power Ord. held 16/3.

Alliance Gas continued out of favour, and reacted pence to 22/7½. McBirney Pref. dipped to 14/-, but Todd Burns Pref. went up to 93/6. Irish C.S. Buildings relapsed 1½ points to 72½, and Clondalkin Paper Ord. shaded off to 6/6.

Imperial Tobacco Ord. declined to 160/-, and B.A.T. Ord. quoted 117/3. Courtaulds Ord. held 55/-, and Hawker Siddeley Ord. rose to 18/7½. Vickers Ord. were unchanged at 17/10½, and Woolworth Ord. quoted 66/-.

WALL STREET STEADY

NEW YORK, Tuesday. — The opening tendency of the Stock Exchange was easier, and trading was quiet. Dealings were sluggish throughout, and towards midday prices were fractionally irregular. A late investment demand—notably, timid—brought fractional recoveries for the leaders, although many issues failed to attract bids. Activity picked up late in the afternoon, and towards the close falls were reduced or erased. The market, nevertheless, closed steady. The turnover of 671,000 shares comprised 839 issues, of which 355 advanced, 256 declined, and 228 remained unchanged.

E.P.T. YIELD HALVED

Due mainly to the E.P.T. yield dropping by half—from £16,966,000 to £8,032,000—total ordinary revenue, as shown in last week's British Exchequer returns, fell more than £12,000,000 to £39,928,175, compared with the previous week's £52,069,831. A five million drop in income tax also contributed to the decrease—£8,940,000, against £13,988,000.

Lord Mayor Sees Exchange at Work

For the first time in the history of the Dublin Stock Exchange, the Lord Mayor of the city was present in the ring yesterday during business transactions. He was accompanied by Dr. P. J. Hernon, City Manager, and Mr. J. Monks, City Treasurer.

Extending a welcome to the visitors, the President, Mr. J. J. Davy, said that as an Exchange they prided themselves in the fact that they went back to 1799. It was older than any other Exchange, with the exception of London. It was fitting that the close interest that existed between the Corporation and the Stock Exchange should be acknowledged in this way.

Having paid a tribute to the executive abilities of the visitors Mr. Davy said that in its City Treasurer the Corporation had been singularly fortunate. It should be a matter of pride and satisfaction to the Corporation that its credit to-day stood as high as any city, not excepting London, and on that account it could raise loans on terms as advantageous as any public body in Great Britain, or elsewhere. The free market that their Exchange provided had made that possible. The Stock Exchange always had been anxious to facilitate the Corporation, and would continue to do so, while, at the same time, keeping a watchful eye on its financial position, and being mindful also of its obligations to the investing public.

Dockers' Holiday Claim.—A further conference was held yesterday under the auspices of the Department of Industry and Commerce to discuss the claim for holidays of Dublin dockers. The talks were adjourned until Saturday. Mr. D. Sullivan presided, and the Irish Transport Workers' Union, the Workers' Union of Ireland, and the Seamen's and Port Workers' Union were represented.

Evidence was given to the effect that the youths, without stealing anything, opened crates of eggs and smashed them. They also broke open a parcel of jerseys and placed them in a box of dried fish.

Fine Gael Party Meet

A meeting of the National Executive of Fine Gael was held at Leinster House yesterday, General R. Mulcahy presiding. A number of matters were discussed, including the re-organisation of the constituencies, the present slump in the prices of cattle and agricultural produce, the high cost of living and post-war policy. Arrangements were made for the Ard Fheis, to be held in the Mansion House, Dublin, on November 21st and 22nd.

ALLEGED ILLEGAL SALES OF BUTTER

The hearing of charges concerning the alleged disposal, by unauthorised transactions, of butter unfit for table use, valued at £593, was resumed at yesterday's sitting of the Special Criminal Court, Collins Barracks, Dublin.

The butter was described by Mr. J. A. Costello, S.C., who appeared for one of the defendants, as a "near-miss," and not even in ordinary courtesy, he said, could it be called butter.

Mr. Costello quoted from a letter written by the vendors, Messrs. Dowdall, O'Mahony & Co., Ltd., Cork, which stated that the butter was liable to get "moulds." The letter added: "It might be as well to sell it to sweet and chocolate manufacturers, as we are less likely to have complaints."

John Duffy, Cooley road, Dublin, a traveller for Messrs. Dowdall, O'Mahony and Co., was found guilty of conspiracy to obstruct the course of justice.

The State entered a nolle prosequi in respect of other charges against him.

A nolle prosequi was also entered in the case of Gerald Murray, Whitestown road, Rush, who was charged with conspiracy to dispose of butter by unauthorised transactions, and Murray was discharged.

Annie Ross, St. Columba's College, Rathfarnham, who pleaded guilty to obtaining butter by an unauthorised transaction, was given the benefit of the Probation of Offenders' Act.

Detective-Sergeant Weddick said that the butter could not be put on a table for use and Mrs. Ross was quite open about the matter. He saw the butter in the kitchen of the college and was satisfied that it was being merely used as cooking fat.

Evidence of character was given on behalf of all defendants who pleaded guilty on Monday.

Joseph Hall, St. Lawrence Gate, Drogheda, was charged with disposing of butter without authorisation and with conspiracy to obstruct the course of justice.

Mr. Costello, who appeared with Mr. A. McDowell (instructed by Messrs. Margetson and Greene), who defended, said that Hall was a trusted employee of Messrs Galbraith, Drogheda. There was no evidence to show that Hall knew to whom the butter which he did not receive went. Beyond a breach of the Emergency Powers Order there was nothing sinister in the dealings. There was no question of black-marketing.

Hall gave evidence that he had told lies to get Duffy out of trouble.

The Court adjourned until to-day.

"BETTING ACT NEEDS AMENDMENT"

The Betting Act of 1931 seems to need amendment. This view was expressed in a judgment given by Mr. Justice Gavan Duffy and Mr. Justice Haugh in the High Court, Dublin, yesterday, in two certiorari motions that were heard by them and the President of the High Court.

The motions asked the Court to make absolute two conditional orders directed to the District Justice at Bray to have two orders made by him sent to the High Court to be quashed. The orders of the District Justice refused applications of John Ledwidge, St. Annes, Dublin road, Bray, and William O'Neill, Milward terrace, Meath road, Bray, to appeal from the refusal of the Superintendent of the Civic Guard for certificates of suitability of premises at Florence road and Albert Walk, Bray, respectively, as bookmaking offices.

The judgment of the President, read by Mr. Justice Gavan Duffy, stated that when the appeals came before the District Justice it was his duty to address his mind to the question whether the number of betting offices in Bray was excessive. If the District Justice were satisfied on the evidence that that was so, it was his duty to confirm the refusal of one or both of the applications. If he were not satisfied it was his duty to disallow the refusal of one or both of the applications.

Mr. Justice Gavan Duffy, in his judgment, said that the Betting Act of 1931 seemed to need amendment, because, if it were proved, for instance, that in Bray three was not an excessive number, but that four would be excessive, a District Court, finding that there were only three registered offices, might have no option but to accede to the prayer of any one, two, three or more aggrieved applicants who appealed from refusals at the same time. Neither applicant having satisfied the Court on the issue that there was not already an excessive number of offices, he was of opinion that the District Justice had no power to allow either appeal, and was bound to dismiss them.

Mr. Justice Haugh said that, in his opinion of the Act, no discretion was allowed to the District Justice to deal with a case in which there was a number of applicants all possessing equal merits and room for only one certificate. An amendment of the Act to deal with a situation of that nature seemed to be the only alternative. He could not see any grounds for interfering with the decision of the District Justice.

Guilty of Receiving.—Mary Lawlor (22), of Coburg street, Dublin, in Dublin Circuit Criminal Court yesterday, was found guilty of receiving a bicycle stolen in 1940. Sentence was deferred.

THE SOCIAL SERVICES

The Most Reverend the Bishop of Clonfert, Chairman of the National Health Insurance Society, sees no reason why the social service legislation of the twenty-six counties should lag in any respect behind Great Britain's. He has submitted a nobly comprehensive scheme of social insurance to the Society, which in turn has offered it for the Government's consideration. Perhaps, the Government will accept it in toto—which we cannot regard as probable: perhaps, it will reject it—which is even less probable; the most likely view is that it will accept the scheme with modifications. Within the past few months the British Government has issued two White Papers of great moment. One provided for the extension of medical benefits to every member of the population, however poor. The other, based on the Beveridge report, sought to include "all the hazards of life" in one broad plan of social insurance. Dr. Dignan's scheme covers the field of both documents. He proposes to reorganise all the health services of the country under the control of "the Committee of Management of an improved and greatly extended National Health Insurance Society." The Poor Law system, together with the dispensary, will disappear; the services of all "Government" doctors and most private doctors, as well as dentists and nurses, will be transferred to the new Society; the hospitals, public, voluntary and private, and the various organisations that look after tuberculosis, rheumatism and other incapacitating diseases will be under the same master. Sickness, disability and maternity benefits will be increased to a very substantial degree. Retirement pensions will be granted to all beneficiaries, and death grants will be available. Next, the Society will take over responsibility for the other social services—unemployment insurance, widows' and orphans' pensions, old age pensions, and children's allowances. So far as the contributory end of the great scheme is concerned, the contributions—here is an essential difference from the British system—will be graded according to the payer's means: all classes of the people will be entitled to participate, and it is estimated that eventually 2,600,000 persons, or 90 per cent. of the entire population, will be included within its scope. It will embrace all employés without exception, and, if they so desire, all citizens who are "gainfully employed" — farmers, shopkeepers, professional men and clergy.

In one very important respect Dr. Dignan's plan differs sharply from the British Government's. The latter, abolishing all "approved societies," proposes to place its fabric under the direct control of a Ministry of Social Insurance. The Irish scheme leaves it in the hands of the—greatly expanded—National Health Insurance Society, under the somewhat remote control of a Minister of Social Services. That is one of the aspects which certainly will attract the Government's special interest, and one on which we are not prepared at the moment to comment. More pertinent is the question of the financing of the big scheme. Whereas the British have made, at least, an approximate reckoning of the cost—which clearly cannot be covered by contributions—Dr. Dignan prefers to leave it to the actuaries He offers, however, a number of suggestions. The State and local authorities presumably, will maintain their present grants towards the social services. A system of paper credits, similar to that which initiated the approved societies in 1911, can be devised. The reorganisation of the various services will save the money now wasted by overlapping. Contributions will be substantially larger. The private "insurance societies" of commercial companies and trade unions will make their funds over to the general "pool." These are only a few of his proposals, which may, or may not, be acceptable. Others we regard as dubious. It is urged, for example, that the taxation which is now demanded for defence purposes shall be maintained after the "emergency" and devoted to the Society's needs. How long, however, can the existing level of taxation—direct and indirect—be preserved without public danger? His Grace suggests that the profits of the sweepstakes shall go to the Society, as the only body concerned in the promotion of health and the cure of illness: but those profits are an indeterminate asset—other nations may relax their moral scruples in regard to public sweepstakes after the war. Pending further study, we must extend a sincere welcome to the Bishop's scheme. It is far more ambitious than anybody could have expected, and, whatever its reception may be from the doctors, the hospitals, and the insurance companies, it bids fair to furnish the model for the social legislation of the future.

St. Vincent de Paul

Winter is coming; and for many of our people spring will seem to be very far behind. To them the first hint of frost in the air does not bring thoughts of holly and turkey and roaring log fires — vague, sentimental memories of Christmas in Dingley Dell. It means that there will be chilly days and long, bitter nights; it means icy winds cutting through ragged clothes; it means rain soaking through to the very bone. The reality behind the bald statement of cost-of-living figures is the reality of cold and hunger. This year the figures are higher than ever, and more people than ever will be forced to appeal to charity for clothes and food. The Society of St. Vincent de Paul, which holds its flag days this week, is one of the bodies which will be called upon to answer the appeal. Last year the Dublin Council of the Society assisted over ten thousand poor families, with food, clothing, footwear, blankets and other necessaries, at a cost of over £40,000. In addition, the Society maintains St. Vincent's Orphanage, Glasnevin, a Seamen's Institute at Sir John Rogerson's quay, and a night shelter where homeless men are given supper, bed and breakfast without charge. It may be a condemnation of our social system that such extensive assistance from private purses should be required by so many people; but the needs of the body cannot wait until such deep-seated ills are remedied. "Give us this day our daily bread," say the words of the Lord's Prayer. Through the Society of St. Vincent de Paul, Dublin people can help to give daily bread to the most needy of their fellow-citizens.

SUPPLEMENTING STATE AID FOR POOR

Poverty abounds in this city, and thousands of people will have to face the winter with the fear of being without clothing, food or fuel, said the Lord Mayor (Alderman M. O'Sullivan, T.D.), presiding at the annual public meeting of the Society of St. Vincent de Paul in the Oak Room of the Mansion House last night. He now asked that all who could should come forward with subscriptions.

Seconding the motion, Mr. Rory Henderson said that no Government, State or organisation could completely eliminate the need for such a Society as that. Even if a Beveridge plan were produced overnight there would be need for the St. Vincent de Paul Society.

Dr. J. A. Harbison supporting the resolution, which was carried, said that in his daily duties he saw the great work done by the brothers of the Society in their visits to the poor.

Moving that the Society of St. Vincent de Paul is worthy of support, Mr. P. J. Little, Minister for Posts and Telegraphs, said that 130,000 visits to 10,000 families during the year, with the expenditure of £41,700, including £10,000 on blankets alone, showed that people were stirred to appreciate the apostolate of the Society. That Society was the first to assuage the bitterness of class conflict and to combat the modern materialism which used the slogan of equality and fraternity to combat religion. The tendency of modern Governments to take a more intimate interest in the lot of the poor by providing pensions and allowances did not remove the need for work such as that Society was doing.

Proposing that a subscription list be opened, Mr. James Clune suggested that the staffs of factories and business houses in the city should start small weekly or monthly subscription lists in aid of the Society.

Seconding the motion, which was carried, Mr. Liam Cosgrave, T.D., said that people who had made great profits out of the emergency should mark their good fortune by sending generous subscriptions.

Judge Cahir Davitt, who acted as hon. secretary of the meeting, announced that there had already been a warm response to the appeal, among the subscriptions received being £1,000 from Most Rev. Dr. McQuaid, Archbishop of Dublin, and many others.

UNIVERSITY NOTES

T.C.D.

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

MICHAELMAS Arts Term begins to-morrow, and the Junior Freshmen who are entering College will attend their first lecture. Several members of the teaching staff already have returned to College to resume their duties. Dr. Parke and Dr. Wormell have resumed their tutorships, and with their return and the appointment of two new tutors, Mr. Coutts and Mr. Mitchell, the number of tutors, which has been rather small during the past two years, has again reached its normal size. Russian lectures will begin to-morrow, and the times of the classes will be arranged in No. 35 at 5.30 p.m. The Auditor of the College Historical Society, Mr. M. B. Yeats (Mod.), B.A., has secured a very good platform for his inaugural address on "The Small Nations"; for the opening meeting in the Dining Hall at 8.15 p.m. on November 1st, An Taoiseach (Mr. Eamon de Valera), Dr. Jan Masaryk, Vice-Premier and Foreign Minister of the Czechoslovak National Committee in London, and son of the first President of the Czechoslovak Republic, and Mr. Lindsay Keir, M.A., Vice-Chancellor of Queen's University, Belfast, will be among the speakers.

The President of the University Philosophical Society, Mr. P. R. Oliver, B.A., is to deliver a paper entitled "The Infected World." It will deal with the problems of V.D. The Provost of Trinity College, Dr. E. H. Alton, M.A., Litt.D., will take the chair in the Dining Hall on Thursday, October 26th, at 8.15 p.m. The Archbishop of Dublin, Dr. A. W. Barton, and Mr. R. M. Smyllie, Editor of the Irish Times, will be among the speakers.

The opening meeting of the College Theological Society will take place on Monday, October 30th, at 8.15 p.m. in the Dining Hall, when the Auditor, Mr. A. E. Stokes, Sch. (Mod.) J. Johnston, M.A., and Mr. E. J. Furlong, M.A., will speak. The Regius Professor of Divinity, the Rev. Canon Oulton, D.D., will be in the chair.

U.C.D.

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

UNDERGRADUATES returning after the Long Vacation were everywhere heard to express their appreciation of the Main Hall, newly painted in brighter and more pleasing colours. The design, for which, it is believed, the new Professor of Architecture, Mr. Joseph V. Downes, B.Arch., is responsible, effects a considerable and much-needed improvement.

The chief function of interest during the week has been the Solemn Votive Mass for the inauguration of the Academic Session, at which His Grace the Archbishop of Dublin presided. The Lord Mayor, the Vice-Chancellor, Dr. Conway, members of the staff and of the student body attended. During the week the Rev. Father Christopher, C.P., is conducting the Annual Retreat for the students of the College.

Preparations for this year's Charity Day on November 4th are well under way. The Treasurer of the Organising Committee is the Auditor of the Commerce Society, Mr. Joseph Boland, B.A., who is assisted by Mr. Thomas M. Gregg (Secretary), Mr. Aongus O'Carroll and Mr. Ivar McG. Boden.

It is anticipated that an issue of the National Student dealing almost exclusively with articles of medical interest, will be published this month. The director of the issue is Mr. Gerald Callanan, a former Secretary of the Medical Society. This concession to the members of College's largest faculty, has met with general approval, and early reports would indicate that an interested and well-balanced issue may be expected.

Captain of the Rugby Club for the season is the interprovincial forward, Mr. H. C. Dolan. More than half of last year's final team are again available, and the team for the all-important Trinity match next Saturday has been selected.

The Calendar shows two changes in the staff. Dr. John F. Cunningham, quondam Master of the National Maternity Hospital, has been appointed to the Chair of Midwifery and Gynæcology, and Mrs. A. McGuire becomes tutor to the Social Science students.

Cruiskeen Lawn

By Myles na gCopaleen

THERE is a story about Keats as a company director using his ventriloquial powers. There is a bowl in the middle of the conference table with a single anemone in it. An important motion is being passed when suddenly the flower says "I object." Keats, of course, moves that the thing be passed anemone contradicente. O.K.?

There was another one I was thinking of . . . . a rather hard one. Keats discovered that Chapman had an insatiable appetite for trifle. On one occasion the two were staying at a hotel, and the poet noticed Chapman darting into the dining-room one night just after a large dinner party had left. Keats, looking into the room, was humiliated to see Chapman, apparently after bribing the head waiter, methodically going from place to place polishing off half-finished sweets left by the departed guests. Naturally the sweet was trifle.

"That . . . . that . . . . Autolycus," Keats muttered contemptuously.

(You get it? Snapper-up of unconsidered trifles?)

By the way, could the Irish Literary Movement with any decency be called the Grania Wail.

Program Note

The Radio Orchestra's Symphony Concert held at the Capitol last Sunday was praiseworthy, with every evidence of ability and plenty of rehearsal on the part of all concerned. I conceived that Commandant Bowles' reading of the Elgar 'Variations' was splendid. (My own variations on 'Elgar' amount to a Large Regal Lager). The Sibelius symphony was coarse and rowdy and my information is that it was included because the brass and percussion personnel threatened to go on strike unless they were given some work to do. I'm not sure that that's the best way to build programs.

Beatrice Harrison was the 'cellist in the Elgar concerto. I thought it a bit odd that the work did not contain any anDante for Beatrice.

Extract

"In my humble opinion the modern girl should have the following attributes: She must first of all have clear-cut, regular features. She must have full clear eyes. Her hair should be glossy and have never known the touch of bleach or dye. She must have a good figure, plump enough yet slender enough, though never suggestive of an angle. She must have a white, expressive, well-cared-for hand, preferably a small one, but not of necessity. She should have small shell-like ears and a throat that is a marble column for her well-shaped head. She must know how to dress discerningly or she loses half her beauty. She must fully understand what best suits her in the way of hairdressing and keep to that."

—Letter to evening paper.

Yes, but if the throat be of marble, surely small shellac ears would look better?

AN IRISHMAN'S DIARY

School for Brides

THE information was that the Technical School in Ballsbridge was giving special instruction in cookery to brides.

The facts, gathered yesterday, are that the Technical School in Ballsbridge is undoubtedly giving instruction in cookery to a greatly increased number of women; but not all of them can qualify for the title of bride.

Miss Angela Carr, Headmistress of this Domestic Economy School, has long waiting lists for almost every one of her various classes—cookery, needlework, laundry, dressmaking, etc. Some of the most popular are the evening classes, from 5.15 onwards, which are attended by girls who work in offices during the day time. "I suppose some of them will be brides in the near future," says Miss Carr, "but we don't make any special provision for them."

Miss Carr seemed to be fairly eager to drop the matter of brides altogether. We did.

Morning Class

Brides apart, a lot more women are learning now to cook. This might be an interesting tendency, with enormous potential repercussions. Equally easy, it could be a passing fancy on the part of the ladies. Miss Carr puts down the increase to the difficulty in getting domestic servants, and food rationing; though why more people should wish to cook less food remains to me obscure.

We called upon the morning cookery class for adults. (I've scarcely been out of the classroom in the past forty-eight hours.) About twelve female adults were working upon recipes for wheaten cakes and vegetable soup. They ranged from the matronly type to the unmarried glamorous. The wives showed a humble, slightly pathetic perseverance, as they chopped onions and carrots, with frequent reference to the instruction manual; the unmarried glamorous were a little more off-hand.

"The chief difficulty with our older pupils," says Miss Carr, "is to teach them the fundamentals of plain cooking — the proportions, whether to boil or stew, and so on. They nearly all want to start by making soufflés and pastry, without knowing whether to put a pinch of salt or a handful of sugar in the pot."

Congratulations

We watched the adults for some time. They became a little nervous. They seemed to be the merest shade out of their depth. Two girls were shovelling diced vegetables off a board into a small saucepan. Another one backed into them from the sink. The diced vegetables shot off the board into a jug of milk. The girls poked at the vegetables vaguely with a spoon.

But great credit, and all hail, to these ladies for taking the trouble to learn a job that nobody else in this country seems to want to do.

After the cookery class we looked in upon the needlework section—a class composed of girls who have recently left the national school, and are too young to find employment.

Miss Carr asked each one in turn what she hoped to be. Seven said they wanted to be dressmakers, four wanted to be waitresses, three could scarcely wait until they became machinists.

"What about domestic service?" I said. There was immediately an outbreak of laughter, as hearty as young girls can venture upon in the presence of their headmistress.

Evening Off

Miss Carr said: "It's always like that. They feel there is a kind of stigma attached to domestic service. None of them ever volunteer to make a profession of it."

The trouble is this. A cook can earn a fairly respectable wage. But it takes three years to make a good cook. Most of the girls must start to earn money as soon as possible after leaving school. They choose the factory, where they can be sure of every evening off, in preference to the almost equal wage of a maid, who can't really be sure of anything.

There is this much hope. Many employers send their domestics to the Technical School in the evening to improve themselves. If ever one of these paragons should come your way, bind her to you with bands of steel. But whatever you do, don't apply to Miss Carr for a maid. Of that she has a mortal terror.

Regiment of Pearse

On November 9th a dinner will be held in Dublin for the scattered Regiment of Pearse. The Regiment of Pearse has even lost its name. It is now known as the 22nd Infantry Battalion, though it still carries the initials "R.O.P." after its official title.

The regiment was formed in 1936 as a successor to the University O.T.C.'s. First to enlist were students of the University Colleges of Dublin, Cork and Galway, together with Trinity College and the College of Surgeons. Later, St. Patrick's Training College, Drumcondra, and the Veterinary College, Ballsbridge, followed suit.

The regiment was a Volunteer unit, doing two parades a week, with three weeks' training under canvas every summer. The regiment wore its own uniform. As an addition to the green of the regular soldier, the regiment wore a maroon forage cap, maroon cuffs, collars and epaulettes, with saffron piping, a maroon stripe down the sides of the trousers, with an individual college badge on the collar.

It was essentially an officer-producing unit.

Rechristening

In June, 1940, the regiment was called up for permanent service, on the same basis as the Regular Army. They went to Gormanston for field training. In July of the same year they were rechristened the 22nd Infantry Battalion, though, as a mark of courtesy, they were allowed to retain the initials "R.O.P."

After Gormanston, in October, 1940, the Battalion took up its duties in the Hibernian Schools, in Phœnix Park. Since then batches of them have left to go on courses for commissions all over the country.

So widely scattered, in fact, has the Battalion become that there has been considerable difficulty in tracing many of the members.

If any of them should happen to read this column, in the remote fastnesses of Kerry, Clare and Donegal, would they take it as an invitation to the reunion dinner on November 9th?

LONDON LETTER

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON.
TUESDAY NIGHT.

THE Council of the London Chamber of Commerce, representing over 11,000 firms, issued to-day its reactions to the Government's report on employment policy and the unanimous views expressed will command wide attention. "It is highly desirable," states the Council, "that Britain should in the post-war era do its utmost to balance its foreign payments by increasing its exports rather than by reducing its imports. Our influence in the world has depended very largely upon the facts that we are the biggest and freest single market for the goods of other nations. Such an import policy need not, and, indeed, must not be allowed to militate in the future, as it has in the past, against the full utilisation and development of Britain's agricultural resources. On the contrary, if a satisfactory nutritional policy is put into operation here and elsewhere there will be a human demand for all foodstuffs which can be grown here as well as for the surpluses of other countries."

"Cheap Food" Illusion

The Council is determined to oppose the placing of British agriculture in competition with overseas producers, who can be shown to exploit their land in such a way as to diminish its fertility. "Such a practice," it comments, "should be frowned upon by world opinion, as it constitutes living on the world's real capital, the fertility of the soil, upon which all life on this planet is ultimately dependent. Financial considerations must not be regarded as the sole criterion as to the part of the world in which food can be most economically produced. We regret there is no special reference in the Government plan to the socially and economically desirable employment which a revival of agriculture would provide and no recognition that farming has any greater claim on the available labour of the nation than any other industry. The first and essential step towards the restoration of agriculture is that agricultural land should be scheduled for farming and not diverted to other uses."

Progress of Cremation

The recent "Coffins" case in the Edinburgh High Court aroused widespread interest throughout the country in the disposal of bodies sent for cremation. The evidence showed that in a small number of cases unrelated bodies were placed in the same coffin, and there were also charges of the theft of a large number of coffin lids. "It would be deplorable if the case in any way disturbed the public confidence in the propriety of cremation," comments "The Scotsman," but it shows the need for independent inspection or control of the process of cremation." The beginning of the cremation movement in England dates from the mid-'seventies.

MUSICAL BROADCAST

The first performance anywhere of the new E. J. Moeran song-cycle, consisting of seven poems by Seumas O'Sullivan, Irish poet and bibliophile, will take place in the Dublin studios of Radio Eireann to-morrow (Thursday) at 8.25, the singer being Violet Burne, soprano. The songs will be sung from the composer's manuscript, and will be heard in the poet's and composer's country before publication.
